ERNEST SILVER MEN.

The Convention at Winnemucca on Thursday was characterized by an earnestness and harmony not observable in the old party Conventions in Nevada.

At Winnemucca there was witnessed none of the scenes of turbulence, confusion and child's play which made the Republican convention at Reno and the Democratic gathering in this city, is laughing stock throughout the State.

The reason of this is that the old party men are unable to make any more in politics without first entertaining a selfish consideration of how they are to be personally affected by the election.

The men who desired in both conventions to show their tremendous devotion to the old parties, rather than manifest an interest in the future prosperity of their State, were in nearly all instances, men who were making a flourish of party fealty to be in line to make a reach for the spoils of office in case the deal comes their way. It is not a spectacle to which any one can point with pride, when one sees Nevadans who have in the past stood high in the respect of their fellows, bartering away their State for a mess of pottage and not particularly a sure mess at that.

Were the majority of our population composed of such timber the State would be turned into an abandoned waste dump with grass growing in our streets.

The men who are now endeavoring to lift the State out of the old rut, where it has been left so long by machine politicians, are doing it at a personal expense to themselves, with no promise of political recognition or reward and the newspapers supporting the movement realize that their course cuts them off from ever receiving a dollar from the State Central Committees. It is a spontaneous movement of the live developers and producers of the State, the men who plow and reap, who delve and toil, who build hoisting works, who run ditches, who clear land, who make grass grow and who believe in State development. When the destinies of Nevada get out of the clutch of the professional politician and is controlled by developers and producers, the prosperous era of the State will have just begun.

The newspapers are teeming with charges of immorality against Edwin Arnold the author of "The Light of Asia." He is charged with having a riotous old time, not with one Japanese beauty, but scores of them. He is probably studying the peculiarities of the race, in order to be able to write with a greater intensity of feeling on the subject. The demand for Arnold's poems is on the wane, and a lot of scandal will boom them in the market at once. Byron was in great demand after his character became infamous.

It is comforting to know that Newlands and Stewart have at last located themselves and we all know where to find them.—News.

They have located themselves at the head of about 7000 voters who place the prosperity of Nevada above the spoils of party. After election their Post Office address will be Washington D. C.

The South foisted Harrison on the Republican party. The North to get even forced Cleveland on the Democrats. Neither party is in love with its leaders. This condition of affairs, is what makes votes for Weaver.

Only two papers in the State, the Tribune and News, are fighting Stewart and Newlands. This is merely mentioned so that Stewart and Newlands may hear of it.
